XXIX. Geo. 2 di.

JANUARY. I Month.

ASTRONOMY, hail, Science heavenly born!
Thy Schemes the Life aſſiſt, the Mind adorn.
To changing Seaſons give determin'd Space,
And fix to Hours and Years their meaſur'd Race
The pointing Dial, on whoſe figur'd Plane,
Of Time's ſtill Flight we Notices obtain;
The Pendulum, dividing leſſer Parts,
Their Riſe acquire from thy inventive Arts.

THERE is no Virtue, the Honour whereof gets a Man more Envy, than that of Juſtice, becauſe it procures great Authority among the common People; they only revere the Valiant, and admire the Wiſe, while they truly love Juſt Men; for in theſe they have intire Truſt and Confidence, but of the former, they always fear one, and miſtruſt the other. They look on Valour as a certain natural Ferment of the Mind, and Wiſdom as the Effect of a fine Conſtitution, or a happy Education; but a Man has it in his own Power to be juſt; and that is the Reaſon it is ſo diſhonourable to be otherwiſe; as Waller handſomely expreſſes it,

Of all the Virtues, Juſtice is the beſt,
Valour, without it, is a common Peſt;
Pirates and Thieves, too oft with Courage grac'd,
Shew us how ill that Virtue may be plac'd;
'Tis Conſtitution makes us chaſte and brave,
Juſtice from Reaſon and from Heav'n we have;
Our other Virtues dwell but in the Blood,
That in the Soul, and gives the Name of Good.
